Electroencephalography (EEG) is an electrophysiological monitoring method to record electrical activity of the brain. It is typically noninvasive, with the electrodes placed along the scalp, although invasive electrodes are sometimes used such as in electrocorticography. EEG measures voltage fluctuations resulting from ionic current within the neurons of the brain.

Since I last posted on the NeuroSky Brainwave Visualizer, I decided to write a simple app to "stream" brainwave/EEG data from NeuroSky devices (the MindWave & MindSet). I couldn't find any apps to save the EEG data so I decided to write a system tray app that will save data to a file and broadcast so other applications can consume the data.

While for most excitable tissue the basis for the impressed current density  $i$  is the propagating action potential, for the EEG it appears to arise from the action of a chemical transmitter on postsynaptic cortical neurons. The action causes localized depolarization - that is, an excitatory postsynaptic potential (EPSP) - or hyperpolarization - that is, an inhibitory postsynaptic potential (IPSP).

L'Électro-encéphalographie (EEG) est la technologie non invasive qui a été la plus étudiée, car elle offre une très bonne résolution temporelle, est facile à mettre en œuvre, portable et économique. Néanmoins, elle est pénalisée par la présence de bruits et l'utilisation de l'EEG en tant que IND nécessite un entraînement intensif.
